Give and Take Review Game

Prepare this game by cutting out all the figures and putting clear contact paper on both sides. Put the point circles in one container and the "Give" and "Take" triangles in another container.

Divide the class into two groups. Ask a review question. The child who gives the correct answer gets to come and take (without looking) a circle and a triangle. The circle will tell him how many points he has earned, and the triangle will tell him whether to "give" those points to the other team or to "take" those points for his own team. When your review questions are finished, add up the total points for both teams and see which team has the most.

Variation: Instead of dividing the class into two teams, have the teacher against the class. Any time a student chooses "give", the teacher receives the points. See if the class or the teacher gets the most points.
